DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hui et al (EP 1087478 A).

Hui et al disclose an optical signal processing element comprising : a first saturable absorber (15) ; and an optical amplifier (23) connected in series with the saturable absorber.

The rest of the text of claim 1 recites functional language capable of being performed by the elements of Hui et al recited above, and as such, renders claim 1 anticipated.

With respect to claim 4, Hui et al disclose: a substrate (the material on which the figure 2 device is formed); a first cladding layer (12) formed on the substrate ; an active layer (16) formed on the first cladding layer; a second cladding layer (29) formed on the active layer; dielectrics formed on both facets (part of the partially reflective end faces of the device); an upper electrode (33, 31) formed on the upper surface of the device; a lower electrode (25) formed on a lower surface of the device, the elements (31) and (33) dividing the saturable absorber from the optical amplifier.

Claims 1-3 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Brindel et al (6,674,569).

Claim 6 is taught by figure 4.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hui et al.

The materials recited by claim 5 were notoriously well known to a person of ordinary skill in the art of fabrication of multiple quantum well devices and, as such, would have been suggested by the multiple quantum well structure of Figure 2 of Hui et al.
